For the Fall 2007-08 quarter, the Economic Analysis learning goal was assessed using course embedded assignments in 2 sections of Econ 202 (Principles of Macroeconomics).

(1) Learning Goal

Understanding the Principles of Economic Analysis

(2) Evaluation Scale

Based on a 10 point course embedded assignment in ECON 202

0-4 = Below Expectations
5-7 = Meets Expectation
8-10 = Exceeds Expectations

(3) Data:

ECON 202/Sections 3 and 4

Number of students sampled = 38
Exceeds Expectation = 21 (55.26%)
Meets Expectation = 13 (34.21%)
Below Expectation = 4 (10.52%)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Learning Objective</th>
<th>Exceeds Expectations</th>
<th>Meets Expectations</th>
<th>Below Expectations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Demand and Supply of Money</td>
<td>Understands the process of money supply creation and the underlying determinants of money demand.</td>
<td>Understands the process of money supply creation</td>
<td>Does not understand the process of money supply creation</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
For the Winter 2006-07 quarter, the Economic Analysis learning goal was assessed using course embedded assignments in 4 sections of Econ 202 (Principles of Macroeconomics)

(1) Learning Goal

Understanding the Principles of Economic Analysis

(2) Evaluation Scale

Based on a 10 point course embedded assignment in ECON 202

0-5 = Below Expectations
5-7 = Meets Expectation
8-10 = Exceeds Expectations

(3) Data:

ECON 202/Sections 1 and 7

Number of students sampled = 60
Exceeds Expectation = 21
Meets Expectation = 30
Below Expectation = 9

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Learning Objective</th>
<th>Exceeds Expectations</th>
<th>Meets Expectations</th>
<th>Below Expectations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Economic Growth</td>
<td>Understands the main determinants of output growth and productivity growth and can explain differences in the growth experiences across countries</td>
<td>Understands the main determinants of output growth and productivity growth.</td>
<td>The student does not understand the idea of output growth.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Number of students sampled = 97
Exceeds Expectation = 58
Meets Expectation = 19
Below Expectation = 20

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Learning Objective</th>
<th>Exceeds Expectations</th>
<th>Meets Expectations</th>
<th>Below Expectations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Business Cycles (Aggregate Demand &amp; Aggregate Supply)</td>
<td>Understand how changes in AD and AS affect equilibrium GDP and price levels, and understands the main determinants of AD and AS movements.</td>
<td>Understand how changes in AD and AS affect equilibrium GDP price levels</td>
<td>Does not understand how changes in AD and AS affect equilibrium GDP and price levels.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total Number of Students Sampled = 157

Exceeds Expectation = 79 (50.4%)
Meets Expectation = 49 (31.2%)
Below Expectation = 29 (18.4%)
For the Spring 2006-07 quarter, the Economic Analysis learning goal was assessed using course embedded assignments in 4 sections of Econ 202 (Principles of Macroeconomics).

(1) Learning Goal

Understanding the Principles of Economic Analysis

(2) Evaluation Scale

Based on a 10 point course embedded assignment in ECON 202

0-6 = Below Expectations
5-7 = Meets Expectation
8-10 = Exceeds Expectations

(3) Data:

ECON 202/Sections 3 and 4

Number of students sampled = 58
Exceeds Expectation = 25
Meets Expectation = 31
Below Expectation = 2

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Learning Objective</th>
<th>Exceeds Expectations</th>
<th>Meets Expectations</th>
<th>Below Expectations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Economic Growth</td>
<td>Understands the main determinants of output growth and productivity growth and can explain differences in the growth experiences across countries</td>
<td>Understands the main determinants of output growth and productivity growth.</td>
<td>The student does not understand the idea of output growth.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Learning Objective

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Learning Objective</th>
<th>Exceeds Expectations</th>
<th>Meets Expectations</th>
<th>Below Expectations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Unemployment</td>
<td>The student understands the relationship between unemployment and the level of economic activity as well as its implications for wages and prices.</td>
<td>The student understands the basic relationship between unemployment and the level of economic activity.</td>
<td>The student does not understand the macroeconomic causes of unemployment.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total Number of Students Sampled = 108

Exceeds Expectation = 61 (56.5%)

Meets Expectation = 42 (38.9%)

Below Expectation = 5 (4.6%)